SOCIETY ISLANDS

The westernmost archipelago of French Polynesia, the Society Islands feature otherworldly landscapes that are volcanic in origin, with deep browns, greens and turquoise blues and low-lying mountains revealing rainbows of coral. Atoll after atoll of stunning shores are theirs to explore, including the "Cradle of Polynesian Culture", Raiatea.

MARQUESAS ISLANDS

At the northeastern end of French Polynesia, the Marquesas feature some of the most remote islands in the entire world, with hidden bays that shimmer among lush green hills and valleys full of exotic vegetation and wildlife. As distant from a continental landmass as you can get, the archipelago even has its own time zone.

TUAMOTU ARCHIPELAGO

Like a string of shiny pearls laid across the deep blues of the South Pacific, the 80 atolls of Tuamotu lie low against the waters with fine white sand bars and swaying green palm trees perched atop rich coral reefs. The main islands, Rangiroa "vast sky" and Fakarava, feature deep clear lagoons, a range of incredible marine wildlife, and cultural events that immerse your clients in the traditions and history of French Polynesia.
